Benes Spurns Move Of Premier to Quit

By ROBERT HECKERT

PRAGUE, Feb. 21 (INS)—President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia refused to accept the resignation of Premier Gottwald today and insisted upon retention of a coalition government representing all parties. Gottwald called upon Benes after addressing a mass meeting of his followers in a manner that foreshadowed intensified Communist attempts to seize total power.

Other Communist leaders demanded elimination of all "reactionaries" from the government which was interpreted as a call for an all-Communist regime.

RESIGNATION SPURNED

Benes announced that no "government of civil servants" will be established in Czechoslovakia and added:

"I told Gottwald I would not accept his resignation. I also told him that should any attempt be made in any quarter to oust him from the government, my answer would be that to me there exists no government without the Communists."

The present crisis was brought about by the resignation of 12 cabinet members representing three right wing parties.

Benes appealed to the Czech people and political parties to stand and work together. He told a deputation of industrial workers that the forthcoming election campaign had engendered distrust. He added:

"I must appeal to you to overcome this nervousness and cooperate."

In his address, Gottwald demanded that cabinet ministers of three right-wing parties who resigned Friday be replaced by "firm progressive democrats who participated in the national revolution."

The resigned ministers totaled 12—four each from the Socialist, Peoples' and Slovak Democratic parties.

The meeting adopted a resolution calling upon Benes to accept the resignations. It read:

"We demand a Gottwald government without reactionary ministers."

Justice Sale Probe Put Up to Barnes

Intercession of Atty.-Gen. Barnes to investigate the alleged "sale of justice" in Suffolk courthouse corridors has been sought to speed the investigation and clean up the situation disclosed in an independent probe by attorneys, it was learned today. It was known that Barnes' first assistant, George B. Rowell has under advisement a plea from the Boston Bar Ass'n to enter the case after asking Municipal Court Chief Justice Davis B. Keniston to name a single justice or committee of judges to probe the situation.

Although Jacob J. Kaplan, of the Bar Ass'n, reportedly had conferred with Rowell on the matter, he declined today to comment on this phase of the situation at the present time.

The plea for Barnes to intercede was understood to have been made after a conference of Chief Justice Keniston and other municipal court justices in the lobby of the Central Municipal Court yesterday.

TWO COURSES OPEN

It became known that several justices of the court have been aware of the situation for some time and have discussed the matter repeatedly. It was also learned that Justice Keniston had been informed of the situation and had conferred about it with members of the Bar Ass'n.

In the event Barnes should accede to the plea that he step into the case, two courses would be open to him.

He could intercede and take charge of the inquiry himself.

Or he could request Chief Justice Stanley E. Qua, of the Supreme Judicial Court to take action and appoint a special commissioner.

MIGHT HIT ALL COURTS

Under the law, the Supreme Judicial Court has general supervisory powers over all the courts of the Commonwealth. It could appoint a special commissioner to handle the investigation.

Appointment of such a special commissioner and opening of an investigation by him might well extend into all the district courts of the city as well as covering evidence already reported to have been uncovered at Central Municipal Court.

Meanwhile, Justice Keniston has

NAVY NEEDS 70,000 MEN

"That is the minimum we need to keep our ships and planes and shore stations operating," the secretary said.

confirmed the exclusive story of the Boston Evening American that the Boston Bar Ass'n has officially called the court's attention to conditions and urged an investigation by the court.

The Bar Ass'n asserted that exorbitant fees were being charged by attorneys who exploited the panic of frightened defendants, and that justice was being sold by venal lawyers, police and probation officers.

KENISTON STATEMENT

Last night Judge Keniston said in part: "The Bar Ass'n expressed its opinion in its report that some of the alleged acts, if established, might constitute contempt of court, or warrant other proceedings, and recommended that the court use its power to investigate and punish for contempt of court as a means of determining the facts and eventually imposing such discipline as might be justified."

Meanwhile, it was learned that two investigators for the Bar Ass'n are continuing their probe.

As the public awaited action on the report, a prominent member of the Bar Ass'n offered a $50 reward yesterday for information leading to apprehension of a witness mysteriously missing in a notorious "fix" case.

CALLS CASE TYPICAL

The attorney, who asked anonymity for the moment, declared this case was typical of those aluded to in the Bar Ass'n report. He added: "Justice hangs in the balance until this witness is found."

The man sought, he said, is Joseph Sessions, formerly of Dover st. He is not wanted for any crime, but was a witness in a municipal court case wherein a minor defendant paid money to a fixer. The fixer was sentenced to nine months, and appealed. The witness, who was to have testified against him in Superior Court, has vanished.

Judge Elijah Adlow, who presided at the lower court hearing, caustically commented at the time:

"I am going to see to it, if I can, that poor, ignorant people are not trimmed by parasites in these corridors. It's tough to see men clipped by civilians and sometimes by lawyers. I don't blame police for being outraged. Men who are trying hard to do their duty are being sold up and down the town."

SLAIN WOMAN'S BODY REMOVED FROM HOME
Concord Husband Confesses to Murder

Concord Wife Slain at Piano By Husband

CONCORD, Feb. 21—The delicate minuet from a Mozart piano sonata being played by Mrs. Helen H. Cox, 62, Lexington st., in an effort to soothe the jangled nerves of her husband ended abruptly today, police said, when he crept up behind her with a claw hammer and ice pick and bludgeoned and stabbed her to death "to save her from worrying about financial losses."

FIND DEATH HAMMER

A few moments after the assault, while his short, slim wife lay unconscious near the piano stool, her head crushed by repeated hammer blows and blood flowing from stab wounds in the ear and heart, Marshall W. Cox, 58, owner of the Stow Country Club and a candymaker, called Patrolman Thomas V. Finan and said: "I just killed my wife."

At the scene, Cox opened the door to Police Chief William G. Ryan, Sgt. Marshall J. Witherell and Patrolmen John T. Foster and Fred Nolan.
"Something terrible has just happened," Cox said to Nolan.
"What?" Nolan asked.
"I just killed my wife."
"Why?" Nolan queried.
"Everything has gone wrong," said Cox. "The roof has fallen in and business has gone to pieces."

Police later established that the roof referred to by Cox was that of his country club in Stow, which had caved in yesterday from the weight of ice and snow.

Mrs. Cox, an accomplished pianist, lingered 50 minutes in an unconscious state before she died at 10:35 a. m.

"DOING HER A FAVOR"

On the shelf beside the kitchen sink police found the hammer and the ice pick side by side and nearby a bloody dish cloth which Cox had used to wipe off the weapons.

In attendance on the slain woman when death came was Dr. Howard E. Robinson, associate medical examiner, who ordered the body removed to an undertaking parlor.

Cox, himself only 5 feet 4, weighing 135 pounds, went quietly, almost eagerly with police to headquarters.

PLAYING SUDDENLY STOPS

There, in a calm, nearly emotionless voice, he explained:

"I thought I'd take care of her and the State will take care of me—the electric chair. She never knew what happened to her. I figured I was doing her a favor to keep her from worrying about financial losses."

The scene of the slaying was in a duplex two-story pre-Revolutionary home, owned by Cox and known as the George Warren House, dating back to 1887.

In the adjoining apartment live Miss Katherine Davis, a concert pianist, and Miss Nancy Loring, a concert singer.

They told police they heard Mrs. Cox playing the piano and then suddenly stop.

"We thought nothing of it," said Miss Davis, "because we were accustomed to hear Mrs. Cox practicing."

The husband's brother, John, 50, a Newtonville candy jobber whose work was completely independent of his brother's, said he "couldn't account for it."

"TOOK LIFE SERIOUSLY"

"Marshall was always nervous and excitable," he added, "and he worried a lot about business."

Mrs. W. T. Powell, Independence rd., who said she was a close friend of Mrs. Cox, told police she had dined with the Coxes last night at their home.

"Mr. Cox seemed tired but pleasant," she said. "I knew from Mrs. Cox that he had had several spells. I asked her if she felt all right being alone with him and she said yes. He took life very seriously and I knew he had been feeling slumpy for several weeks."

Cox and his wife, who married late in life and had no children, moved here from Stow about seven years ago.

'Winchester Day' Echoes Battle of Bulge

HEMROULLE, Belgium, Feb. 21 (AP)—The good people of Hemroulle got their bedsheets back today from the Americans. Col. John Hanlon of Winchester, Mass., presented each of the 24 Hemroulle villagers with a pair of crisp new bedsheets in the name of his townspeople.

It was a day of joy for this tiny snow-covered hamlet three miles north of Bastogne. The church bells pealed, bugles sounded and the children waved Belgian and American flags.

They called it "Winchester Day." This is the story behind the celebration:

On Christmas eve in 1944 during the critical battle of the Bulge, Col. Hanlon, then a major commanding the First Battalion of the 502d Parachute Infantry, dropped out of the skies with his men onto the snow-covered fields surrounding Hemroulle.

Hanlon went to the church and summoned the villagers by tolling the bell. He explained the Americans needed camouflage to hide them from the Germans.

The villagers went to their homes and returned with precious snow-white bed sheets. Hanlon promised the sheets would be returned.

Today Hanlon fulfilled his promise. He returned to the village and again summoned the villagers to the church by tolling the bell and he presented them with the sheets—a gift of the people of Winchester.

In addition more than 600 sheets were presented to the old people's home in Bastogne. All of the sheets were marked with the names of the Winchester donors.

The burgomaster of Longchamps, of which Hemroulle is a hamlet, made the colonel an honorary citizen.

Blast Mate's Charges in Love Suit

Charges of misconduct which William M. Grinditch, Jr., Harvard Business School graduate, brought against his estranged socialite wife, Mrs. Gioia Baker Grinditch and Blake Brophy, son of a Phoenix, Ariz., banker, were labelled false today by members of Brophy's family.

The Harvard man, alleging a domestic triangle, filed suit in Federal court in Phoenix asking $250,000 damages. A spokesman for Brophy said there was no basis for the charges and added, "they are false."

Mrs. Grinditch is the great granddaughter of the late Jay Gould, railroad tycoon, and daughter of madcap socialite Gloria Gould.

DECEASED AS HUBBY

Grinditch, now a graduate student at the University of Pennsylvania and former national junior men's ice skating champion, charged his wife and Brophy with misconduct on seven specific dates in 1946 "and at other times." As a result, the plaintiff asserted, he was defrauded of his rights as husband of Gioia (meaning "Joy" in Italian).

In the suit, Grinditch cited that his young wife has a personal fortune of more than $750,000. She recently filed suit for divorce.

The couple married in a colorful ceremony at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York, in May, 1943, two years after he had won the skating championship and then entered the Army. They have two children.

LEAVES FOR PHOENIX

Grinditch is the son of a vice-president of the Hazeltine Electronics Corp., N. Y., and former vice-president of the Philco Radio Corp. The Grinditch family make their home at Rydal, Pa., near Philadelphia, but young Grinditch was said to have left Monday for Phoenix.

Gloria Gould Barker, Mrs. Grinditch's mother, was born to wealth and social position as the youngest daughter of George J. and Edith Kingdon Gould.

National American Legion Chief Greeted on Visit Here

Legion Chief Sees House Passing UMT

Here for his annual Massachusetts visitation, James F. O'Neil of Manchester, N. H., national commander of the American Legion, predicted today that Congress will act at this session on universal military training and said he was confident the measure would be passed by the House.

Speaking at a breakfast in his honor at the Copley Plaza O'Neil told state and city officials and Legion comrades that there is only one reason why the American Legion has been advocating compulsory military training for the last 28½ years.

"That reason is peace," he said. "Only one vote is necessary in the House Rules Committee to bring the universal military legislation to the floor of the House. It definitely will be brought out of committee at this session."

"I know that the UMT bill will be passed by the House. I believe that many opponents of this bill are sincere and I respect their opposition. But there are a lot who will be found in opposition to it whose reasons are political only, and others who are opposing it because they do not want our form of government to succeed."

"I am not pessimistic about the UMT bill. The people will prevail. The politicians lose sight of the fact that universal military training does not involve veterans and that the public wants it."

GI GRADS PROBLEM

O'Neil said some 2,000,000 GI students soon will be graduating from colleges, and that one of the major Legion problems was to see that these graduates found outlets for their training and skill. He said that if they did not find jobs they would be a "disturbing segment" of our population. The national commander proposed that many of these GI training graduates could be employed as overseers of the operation of the Marshall Plan in various countries.

O'Neil, who arrived here from Washington, was met at South Station by Legion officials and by his personal sergeant-at-arms, Richard J. Morrissey. He will be guest at a State luncheon at the Hotel Statler this noon and will be greeted by 1500 Legionnaires at a banquet there tonight.

Truman Flies to Puerto Rico, Makes Independence Offer

ISLA GRANDE AIR BASE, San Juan, P. R., Feb. 21 (INS)—President Truman gave the hope of eventual political independence to the people of Puerto Rico today. The President landed at this air base at 9:21 a. m., E. S. T., after a flight of more than five hours from Key West, Fla.

30-Day Rent Bill Gets O. K. In Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (AP)

A 30-day extension of rent controls was agreed on today by Senate and House Republican leaders. The present controls are due to expire Feb. 28.

Senator Taft (R.) of Ohio told reporters the Senate will be asked to act late next week on a 30-day extension bill the House is expected to pass Tuesday.

The extension would allow both chambers time to decide whether to continue controls, for how long and in what form. The Senate now is debating a bill to continue controls 14 months with some changes from the present law.

Taft said the 14-month bill may be approved by the Senate Tuesday and that because of this, it will be necessary for the Senate to act on the 30-day extension proposed by the House. Taft said the Senate will go ahead with the long-range measure to get it out of the way.

Sen. Taft (R.) of Washington said earlier that he may join opponents of a proposal to jail and fine rent control violators. Such a provision is included in the 14-month extension measure the Senate is considering.

Steel Chiefs Face Congress Quiz

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (AP)

Top leaders of the steel industry will be called before a joint congressional economic committee Thursday to explain a general $5 a ton boost in steel prices.

Sen. Taft (R.) of Ohio said this decision was reached unanimously today at a closed session of the Senate-House economic committee of which he is chairman.

Taft told reporters: "It will be a preliminary discussion to decide if we want to go into this further."

Taft said the witnesses probably will be representatives of U. S. Steel, Little Steel and the Independents.

The Chief Executive's message on arrival in the strategic island regarding the approaches to continental United States was:

"I have said to the Congress several times—and I repeat it here—that the Puerto Rican people should have the right to determine for themselves Puerto Rico's political relationship to the continental United States."

Mr. Truman addressed the islanders on landing here.

ELECT OWN GOVERNOR

The island folk already have achieved the right to elect their own Governor—hitherto appointed by Washington—and are now hoping for full recognition of statehood.

Tens of thousands turned out to greet the President on his one-day stay, the first of a three-day visit to Caribbean Islands including nearby St. Thomas and St. Croix in the Virgin Islands.

Gov. Jesus T. Pinero and the top officials of the island greeted the President warmly as he stepped from the plane. An army band played "Ruffles and Flourishes" and the familiar "Hail to the Chief." Interior Sec. Krug, who flew to San Juan from New York, was among the greeters.

Mr. Truman's message to Puerto Rico, however, held a broader meaning than that of the President of a powerful nation speaking to an insular possession. He said the relationship between the United States and the island provided a lesson in democracy for the world.

PRaise FOR ISLANDERS

Mr. Truman said the world had heard much of Puerto Rico's problems—too little of its accomplishments. He extolled the islanders for their advancement in education, free schools, highway development, hospitals and modern utilities. Then he said:

"In both Puerto Rico and the mainland, we Americans are seeking and finding the solution to problems in the democratic, American way—by courage, imagination and co-operation."

"This is the democratic approach to the problem of national existence in the modern world."

Truman Gesture Makes Hit With Puerto Ricans

SAN JUAN, P. R., Feb. 21 (INS)—President Truman made his American gesture to the people of San Juan today when he concluded his speech. He stepped away from his police guard and instead of going to his waiting car strolled smiling to a group of schoolchildren standing behind a rope barrier.

Startled dignitaries stood behind him as he exchanged greetings. The President lifted his hat, and smiling and waving his hand, walked down the full length of the crowd. Puerto Ricans leaned over the rope to stretch to his hand as he passed and shouted: "Hello, hello, viva, viva President Truman."

School children threw hibiscus and poinsettia blossoms in his path.

Leaving the airport in an open car with Gov. Pinero the President began a tour of San Juan. Part of the drive took him through a slum area.

Five in State Prison Awaiting Execution

With the arrival of Charles A. McGarty, 26, Fall River, slayer of his 8-year-old niece, Theresa LaFleur, also of Fall River, in the State Prison condemned men's row today, the total number there awaiting execution for murder was raised to five, the largest group in the history of the institution.

Warden Francis J. W. Lanagan said that no execution date has been set for any of the five.

The four others facing the electric chair are Vincent P. Delcchiaie, 23, Lawrence, who last September slew 7-year-old Louise Ann Kurpiel, also of Lawrence; Joseph T. Galvin, 30, Mattapan, an inmate for the 18 months since his conviction for the murder of Sarah Rodman, Mattapan, Oct. 8, 1945, and William and Edward J. White, unrelated, both of the South End, condemned for the slaying of Nicholas DiMartino, Dedham, last August.

Sleuths Map Return Of 3 in Co-Op Holdup

Armed with extradition warrants for the return of an Allston couple and a Dedham ex-convict, two Cambridge detectives were in Miami today conferring with Florida authorities on legal steps for the release of the trio from custody there.

No indication has yet been given by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Tilley and Anthony Novicki whether they will fight the move of Lt. Insp. Joseph P. Breen and Insp. Fred Marchini to take them to Cambridge to face charges in connection with the $50,000 Harvard Co-operative Society holdup.

Novicki, 30 years old and a resident of Schiller rd., Dedham, an ex-Army paratrooper, was arrested at Miami Airport after a terrific battle with three police officers, and is being held in $100,000 in Dade County jail.

The Tilleys, who live in Commonwealth ave., Allston, are held in $10,000 each. Novicki was trapped as he arrived at the Airport with Mrs. Tilley to greet her husband, who police said flew down with the idea of "bailing out" Novicki who had been betting heavily at the race track and spending lavishly in Miami nightclubs.

Meantime, search was going on for three more gunmen in connection with the Cambridge holdup, one of whom, a Cambridge ex-convict, evaded a police trap and sped away from his home to escape road blocks erected in a dozen communities.

The suspect fled in a tan colored automobile bearing Florida registration plates

New Bedford Dragger Ashore Near Cape Canal

WAREHAM, Feb. 21—The 48-foot fishing dragger Sea Prince, out of New Bedford, was found stranded on Stony Pt. dike today, a gaping hole in its side and apparently abandoned by its crew. The vessel, skippered by Capt. Frank Souza, New Bedford, was ashore about four miles west of the Buzzards Bay entrance to Cape Cod Canal. There were no signs of life on the dragger. The Coast Guard believed the crew had abandoned her and gone to their homes.

1 Man Dies in Fire, Another Is Saved By Calm Cabbie

A Malden man suffered fatal burns and a Beacon Hill roomer was rescued by the combined efforts of police and a cab driver today in early morning fires in their homes.

Muddy River Dragged After Bloody Find

A woman's blood-soaked glove found floating in Muddy river, near the Fensgate, confronted Metropolitan Police with a major mystery today. A pool of blood also was found on the steps of the flood gate house in the rear of the Hotel Fensgate, about 40 feet from the river bank. Two stained razor blades were lying nearby.

With a possible murder indicated, Metropolitan Police Capt. William A. Marley ordered his men to begin dragging operations in both the Muddy and Charles rivers. Muddy river empties into the Charles at about the spot where the glove was located.

Specimens of the bright and apparently flesh blood were taken immediately to Harvard Medical School for analysis.

The blood on the gate house steps was discovered about 10 a. m. by Metropolitan Patrolman Joseph McCuskey. A few minutes later he spotted the glove on the ice floe in the river about 50 yards away.

McCuskey notified Sgt. Fred L. Johnson and together they went out in a boat to the ice floe. There they found a woman's left-hand white glove, saturated with blood.

Dragging of both rivers, only recently free of clogged ice, began shortly after the two officers reported their find. The glove was turned over to chemists for analysis and possible identification marks. The razor blades were checked for fingerprints.

"We have no way of telling just what all this means until we've completed dragging," one police officer said. "It may be a murder or it may be a suicide."

Wallace M. Carroll, 46, died at Malden Hospital several hours after he was burned on the face, arms and body when he apparently fell asleep while smoking in an overstuffed chair in his home in Regent rd., Malden.

He was rushed to the hospital after police found him unconscious in the front hallway of his home, where he collapsed after carrying the burning chair outside. He was alone in the house at the time.

WREATHED IN FLAMES

In Beacon Hill, Fred Doyle, 50, Somerset st. lodger, also suffered burns of the head, face and body in a fire in his quarters, which drove 15 other occupants from the 4-story building.

Louis Fisher, 53, of McLean st., West End, the cab driver, was passing the house when he saw Doyle, wreathed in flame, at the window of his third floor room.

"Don't jump, you'll be all right," Fisher shouted. "Run down and open the front door. I'll take care of you." The victim, despite agonizing burns, did as he was told.

PULLED OUT BY CABBIE

By that time, Sgt. Joseph Gaffney of the Joy st. station had been attracted to the scene, just as Doyle was pulled out the front entry by the cab driver.

The sergeant found a blanket and rolled the blazing Doyle on the ground until the fire was beaten out. Both rescuers then took the victim to City Hospital where doctors said his condition was critical.

Five Boston firemen were injured, two seriously, in a three-alarm blaze which roared uncontrolled for hours through the six floors of a building at Cross and Fulton sts., causing $100,000 damage and menacing the downtown market district.

ladder, and Joseph Dashner, 18, Hyde Park ave., Hyde Park, badly cut by flying glass.

Treated at City Hospital for smoke inhalation and minor injuries were Walter Kripp, 35, Monument sq., Charlestown; John Glynn, 27, Darius ct., South Boston, and Charles Bagley, 26, St. Botolph st., Back Bay.

The blaze, starting in the first floor in the Market Supply Co., worked through the entire building and the roof. Thousands of dollars worth of hospital and medical rubber supplies were destroyed in the upper floors. Thick smoke, the odor of burning rubber and collapsing floors hampered the firemen in battling the blaze.

Smith and the car were involved in an accident. Bailey pulled him from the slightly-damaged car. Smith said:

"I'm tired of this car. This isn't the first wreck I've had in it. Do you want it?" Bailey said he dusted Smith off, wiped the blood from his face and soothed:

"Take it easy. You're shaken up a bit, but you'll feel better after awhile."

Yesterday, to his astonishment, Smith made good on the gift offer. The car is a 1936 model.

N. Y. Vets' Poor Homes Target for ALP Victor

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—A threat of court action against New York city came from Rep.-Elect Leo Isacson (ALP-The Bronx) today if alleged poor living conditions at eight city temporary housing projects were not improved. Isacson, representing veterans living in the projects, cited "leaky roofs, gaping seams and rats which have attacked little children" in describing complaints by tenants.

6 Legion of Valor Staff Chief Demands Action on UMT

A former national commander of the Army-Navy Legion of Valor today urged that Congress act immediately to pass legislation for Universal Military Training.

Lt. Col. Ralph Robart, now chief of staff of the Army-Navy Legion of Valor, cautioned that America should not again get caught unprepared. A veteran of both World Wars, Robart declared:

"I am wholeheartedly behind a well co-ordinated Universal Military Training program; first, as an essential step toward our goal for future security and peace; and secondly, as a benefit to the youth of the nation. UMT will give our young men a substantial grounding in Army discipline, and a thorough training in military behavior and fundamental hygiene technique.

"Congress cannot delay this legislation any longer. It must be passed now, at the present session of Congress. The peace of the world and the welfare of the country are at stake."

Robart asserted that the rest of the world is watching and waiting to see what stand the United States will take on this issue. If America adopts a weak program, it is quite probable that many small nations "will jump on the Russian bandwagon," he said. Then he added:

"But if we keep ourselves prepared and well trained, they will stay with us. Let us not have a reputation of what happened before and after World War I and at the outset of World War II—being caught unprepared."

Mice Immunized Against Cancer

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21 (AP)—Mice have been immunized against some forms of cancer, Lankenau Hospital's Institute for Cancer Research disclosed today. A human blood test to detect the disease has worked in at least one case.

These developments in fighting the nation's second most deadly disease were reported as the American Cancer Society gave the institute $100,000 for research directed toward a cure.

But Dr. Stanley P. Reimann, institute director who accepted the society's gift, warned no new cancer cures have been found.

"We must guard against raising false hopes," he said.

New Low in Petty Cruelty! Dog Held for $50 Ransom

HARTFORD, Ct., Feb. 21 (AP)—A 5-month-old Great Dane puppy was being held for ransom here today, Albert I. Prince, promotion editor of the Hartford Times, disclosed.

Today the puppy, Lady, had disappeared from the yard of his home on Tuesday.

The following day, he said, he inserted a "lost" advertisement in the Times and that night Mrs. Prince received a telephone call.

"I have your Great Dane dog," Prince said a man's voice told Mrs. Prince. "Would you pay fifty dollars to get it back?" Prince said that when Mrs. Prince told the caller her husband was not home to make the decision, the caller replied:

"Then tell him that if he ever expects to see his dog again he'll have to pay the $50 reward."

Prince said he believes the man holding his dog is waiting for the appearance of an advertisement saying the reward will be paid.

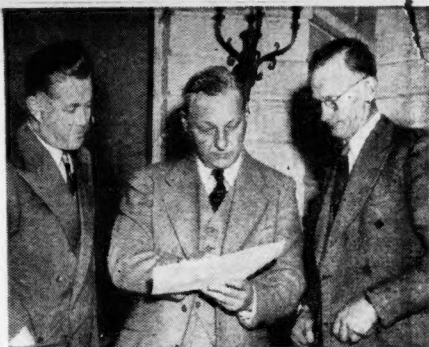

Meantime, he added, he has asked Hartford residents to help him track down the man.

Recording Order Seen Shot at Ban

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 21 (AP)—The first attempt to break through the Petrillo recording ban was seen today by musicians.

Handleader Ike Carpenter disclosed he had received notice from Standard Radio Transcriptions Co. to report for recording next Wednesday. His manager, Hal Gordon, said he was awaiting word from James C. Petrillo, musicians union chief, before making any commitment. Petrillo's ban against union member recording has been in effect since Jan. 1.

Louis B. Teggarden, counsel for Standard Radio, said he sent letters to Carpenter and three other groups asking them to appear for recordings.

Trio Plan Opposition to Proposed Nolen-Miles Bill

Irate Citizens Canvass Cities, Towns in Fight on Vivisection

All over Massachusetts today, women and children, spurred by indignation against the provisions of the Nolen-Miles Senate Bill 264, and prompted by love for their own cherished pets, are canvassing friends and neighbors to enlist their willing aid in fighting the legislation.

The proposal would require that stray pets must be turned over for experimentation and vivisection if they were not located by their owners within six short days.

First youngster to go to work against the bill when its provisions became known to the public was Patricia Laslie, 11, of Carver's Mt., South End, who intends to conduct a one-girl march on the State House to present petitions which now bear over 600 signatures, "and I haven't stopped yet," says Patricia sturdily.

DOZEN OF LETTERS
Since Pat's original intention was announced early in the drive against the bill, she herself has received dozens of letters, from as far away as North Dartmouth; Clarendon, N. H.; Stoughton; Lahe, Me.; and Beverly, praising her for her stand.

One of the correspondents, Isabelle Di Donito, of Northern Ave., Beverly, sent Pat a letter and a long list of signatures to append to Pat's petition against the bill.

Argentine Warship Speeds to Antarctic

ABOARD THE CHILEAN TRANSPORT PINTO, Feb. 21 (AP)—The Pinto encountered two Argentine vessels in the Drake Strait last night. One was traveling south toward the Antarctic.

President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla is aboard the Pinto, en route for Punta Arenas, on the Strait of Magellan. He is returning from a trip to land that Chile claims in the Antarctic.

The meeting occurred shortly after the Pinto's radar indicated the presence of ships. One of the Argentine vessels was the cruiser Adm. Brown. It was steaming south.

A dispatch from Hugo Errillo, correspondent of the Santiago newspaper El Mercurio aboard the transport, said that yesterday two small warships, one British and one Argentine, assaulted the Pinto in Deception Island Bay. Deception Island is claimed by Britain and Argentina.

(President Gonzalez watched the blinker-light salute of the two ships.

Mother Saves Life Of Baby in Dash

The young mother of a 3-months-old girl saved the life of her only child today when she applied artificial respiration to the infant for the last three minutes of a race against death from Newburyport to Children's Hospital here.

Resting under an oxygen mask at the hospital is little Joyce Sigonwitch, blonde, blue-eyed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Sigonwitch, Water st., Newburyport. Her illness has been tentatively diagnosed as a congenital heart disease.

The infant's life hung in the balance when an oxygen tank supplied by the Anna Jacques Hospital in Newburyport gave out three minutes from the hospital. The mother used artificial respiration for the rest of the trip. She was aided by her husband, while her brother, John Nichol, drove the car.

Girl Student Dies In Back Bay Room

Miss Anne Schoonmaker, 21, of Lander, Wyo., a student at Katharine Gibbs School, died unexpectedly today in her room in Marlboro st., Back Bay, as firemen sought to revive her with an inhalator.

Firemen and a doctor were summoned to the house after the girl's roommate, Estelle Weeks of Portland, Me., reported to the house matron, Mrs. Ethel Sherman, that she was unable to arouse Miss Schoonmaker.

She said she had spoken to her earlier in the morning and the girl had made an unintelligible answer, then fell asleep again.

Dr. Lewis Kane of Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, pronounced her dead when firemen were unable to revive her. The body was removed to Northern Mortuary.

Can't Read, Write-- But What a Citizen

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 21 (AP)—A Newfoundland born father of five children—three of whom saw overseas service in World War II—has been admitted to citizenship despite his inability to read or write.

U. S. Dist. Judge Thomas Maden told Isaac Curnew, 58:

"Other judges say that you should be able to read and write before you are admitted to citizenship. That is the rule.

"But you and your sons have performed a great service to this country. Am I supposed to sit here and deny you citizenship?"

"It seems to me that what we want is good citizens and you have proved that you can be one."

Curnew said he had been working such long, hard hours to raise his children there was little time left for him to learn to read and write.

We even engineer the air

YES—we have coil-springing on all four wheels, and that's wonderful.

YES—the seats are wider in a Nash, and there's more headroom and stretch-room for everybody. And a Convertible double Bed, too, if you like.

YES—a Nash "600" delivers 25 plus miles to a gallon at average highway speeds.

But this doesn't begin to explain the overwhelming and ever growing swing to Nash—

Because what people get in a Nash can't be had in any other automobile at any price!

We even engineer the air in a Nash. For with the famous Weather-Eye Conditioned Air

System you enjoy automatic heat and ventilation... freedom from overcoats and gloves, stuffy air, dust, drafts, fogged-up windows

You get the strength and quietness of a single, welded unit body-and-frame.

You get a brand-new feel to an automobile—a swifter, quieter, more enjoyable way to travel.

And you get the fine old-time ruggedness of a Nash—the dozens of quality features and extra values that have built a world-wide tradition of lasting dependability.

But words can't tell you what a Nash is like. Try one yourself—and see.

Product of Nash research and engineering, new Unitized body-frame construction sets the pattern for tomorrow. Built a new way, with frame and body welded into a single steel-girdered unit, it is lighter and immeasurably stronger. 8500 spot welds eliminate noise-making joints.

'Three Daring Daughters' Tuneful; Color Scenes Good

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Three Daring Daughters," whose "daring" consists in endeavoring to reunite their father and mother who had parted years before, is the new MGM musical in Technicolor which returns Jeanette MacDonald, to her screen role since 1942. It is now showing on Loew's twin screens.

Miss MacDonald, whose Technicoloring and histrionics are somewhat muted since last we caught one of her pictures, is looking unusually attractive. In the new trend which has "the girls" acting their age, she portrays the mother of the title's little Misses. First who is wooed and won by pianist-screen star Jose Iturbi playing himself.

Iturbi is a particular screen favorite of this department but unhappily both script and direction have him doing a much too cute repeat of the character he has come to be on screen. The generously gifted Iturbi has a wonderful spontaneity and a zestful comedy sense that should not be dimmed by inept handling as in his current film.

Playing a spectacularly successful magazine editor, Miss MacDonald takes a cruise to Cuba for a rest. Aboard ship she meets and reluctantly falls in love with Iturbi.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Iturbi when they return to the United States (what does that make Nelson Eddy?), a happy development that is clouded by the daughters' ecstatic news that "dad's coming home."

As the daughters, Jane Powell, Ann Todd and Mary Eleanor Donahue are much too big-headed for their years. With their bumptious interfering tactics, they almost wreck their mother's new marriage before they learn that their father walked out on them all and has returned only because of his newspaper publisher's insistence.

Koussevitzky Back With Symphony

Serge Koussevitzky, returning from his mid-season vacation, will conduct the Boston Symphony concerts in Symphony Hall in the next week and for the remainder of the season, with the exception of two weeks in March during which Charles Munch will be the guest.

Next Tuesday will bring the fourth concert of the Tuesday evening series, and Friday afternoon and Saturday evening the 17th pair of concerts in the longer series. A week from tomorrow will bring the fifth concert in the Sunday afternoon series.

Dr. Koussevitzky announces for the Friday and Saturday pair the new Fourth Symphony by Francesco Malpiero, composed for the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and dedicated to the memory of Mme. Natalie Koussevitzky. The Symphony is subtitled "In Memoriam," and is elegiac in character. It is to be performed for the first time. The soloist on this program will be Arthur Rubinstein, who will be heard in the A major Piano Concerto of Bartok, K. 458, and Rachmaninoff's Rhapsody for Piano and Orchestra on a Theme of Paganini.

'Carousel' Sale on Monday

Seats go on sale Monday for The Theater Guild's Broadway musical hit, "Carousel," which on Monday night, March 1, opens a two-week return engagement at the Opera House.

'The Hallams' Matinee At Wilbur on Holiday

"The Hallams," Rose Franken's new play at the Wilbur, will initiate its second and final week here with a special Washington's Birthday matinee. Leading players are Ethel Griffies, Mildred Dunno, Royal Beal, Alan Baxter, June Walker, Mildred Wall, Matt Briggs, Frank M. Thomas, John McKee, Dean Norton and Katherine Bard. Miss Franken staged the William Brown Melodrama production.

Brown-Pembroke Glee Clubs to Give Concert

The Brown-Pembroke Glee Clubs and Combined Chorus will give a concert in Jordan Hall on Friday, March 19, at 8:15, under auspices of the Brown Club and the Pembroke Alumnae of Boston. The concert will be under the direction of Prof. Edward Barry Green of Brown University's music department.

Easter Fashion Parade

Jo Copeland Urges Costume Look

I HAVE SELECTED two costumes which I believe a discriminating woman will find most useful this spring for many different occasions. The fitted black faille coat is, I think, the personification of the "Look." It's small-waisted, flared, crisp and very feminine. Under it the black and white polka dot silk dress is gay in contrast to the somber coat. Accordion pleats are the only detail, in the front of the bodice and skirt, cinched in by a black patent leather belt.

The suit is streamlined and my idea of getting away from the traditional "spring suit" . . . it has all its assets of tailored lines, a jacket and slim skirt, plus the unexpected in a fragile white chiffon blouse and a coat that buttons in an unorthodox manner at the neckline. It doesn't have to be opened to show the blouse, yet it's not loose, but fitted. The colors are gay and flattering, the jacket of red wool twill, the skirt of navy wool.

With this suit I like a white hat, like the one shown of straw and chenille veiling.

THE WOMAN WHO LOOKS like her own American self . . . her clothes underwriting the determination to give every lovely body line its due and more . . . will have the unmistakable 1948 spring look. That's the belief of Jo Copeland who designs the collection for Pattullo Modes.

So this spring you'll talk about . . . and wear . . . according to Jo Copeland's fashion interpretation . . . an excerpt of which appears on the page today as part of the daily panorama EASTER FASHION PARADE . . . a new forward slanting shoulder line, unusual fabrics like printed satin, schiffli embroideries that look like white lace laid over crepe, handkerchief peplums, drawstring shirring moulding the torso, tailored chiffon dresses, skirts with pleats of three different widths, skirts laid over instead of under the bodice, cutaway basques, printed dresses trimmed with jet, and lace suits.

All of which adds up to one thought . . . bodices will be very slick, absolutely without bulk and clothes, whatever their description will be very feminine instead of brittle.

The line of least resistance will be the curved, feminine line . . . and Jo Copeland says the suit, dress or coat will follow it seductively, but knowingly so.

Thrifty Lenten Meals

FOLLOWING ARE MENUS and recipes which have been prepared by Good Housekeeping Institute for the Lenten season:

February 22nd, Sunday

BREAKFAST

Sliced Oranges
Choice of Cereal with Milk
Bacon and Eggs

Piping Hot Corn Muffins (Use Packaged Mix-
Milk (all) Coffee

DINNER

Mustard Glazed Hamette
New Potatoes in Jackets
Buttered Cauliflower and Peas
Celery and Carrot Sticks

Bread Butter or Fortified Margarine
George Washington Ice Cream Logs
Milk (children) Tea (adults)

SUPPER

Dinner Chowder
Lettuce Salad Bowl
Rye Bread Butter or Fortified Margarine
Spiced Canned Peaches (Heat syrup with a bit of powdered cinnamon and grated lemon rind. Pour over peaches and serve.)
Milk (children) Coffee (adults)

MUSTARD GLAZED HAMETTE

Remove wrapper from a 2 to 2½ lb. smoked boneless shoulder butt. Then wash and place in large, deep kettle. Add enough boiling water to cover; then add 1 peeled clove garlic, 6 whole cloves, 1 bay leaf and 4 peppercorns. Simmer, covered, 2 hours, or until tender. Then remove butt to shallow baking pan. With sharp knife, score surface in squares or diamonds; then stud it with whole cloves. In saucepan, combine 1 tablesp. salad oil, 7 tablesp. prepared mustard, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 5 tablesp. catchup and 3 tablesp. vinegar. Simmer, while stirring, until just blended; then pour over butt. Bake in moderately hot oven of 375 degrees F. for 25 minutes, basting occasionally. Makes 4 servings, with leftovers.

GEORGE WASHINGTON ICE CREAM LOGS

Cut 6 pieces waxed paper 8" x 6". Divide 1 pint fairly firm vanilla or coffee ice cream into 6 parts. Place each part on piece of waxed paper. Then roll ice cream up tightly in waxed paper to form rolls (logs) 3" x ½" each. Twist ends of paper to make ice cream compact. Store in freezing compartment of automatic refrigerator to firm up. In serving, unwrap ice cream, cut off thin slice from each end of log to even up, then roll slices in shaved chocolate. Now dip a toothpick in melted chocolate and make a whirl on each cut end to represent markings on the cut end of log. Serve each log on a dessert plate, garnished with 1 or 2 maraschino cherries with stems and a spray of huckleberry leaves. Makes 6 servings.

DINNER CHOWDER

2 cups diced, pared, raw, white potatoes
¾ cup minced onion
¾ cup coarsely diced celery
1 tablesp. salt
2½ cups boiling water
3 tablesp. butter or fortified margarine
¼ cup flour
1½ tablesp. salt
¾ tablesp. pepper
1½ tablesp. dry mustard
1½ tablesp. bottled thick meat sauce
2 cups milk
½ lb. grated process American cheddar cheese
(1½ cups)
1 tablesp. minced parsley
1 cup canned tomatoes

Combine first 5 ingredients in deep kettle. Cover; simmer tender—about 15 min. Meanwhile, melt butter in double boiler. Stir in flour until smooth, then add next 5 ingredients. Cook until thickened; add cheese, stir until melted. Stir into potato mixture with parsley and tomatoes; heat. Makes 4 servings.

The menus and recipes for Monday, Feb. 23, and Tuesday, Feb. 24, will appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser tomorrow.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

WHENEVER you serve macaroni, spaghetti or noodles, the meal will be more attractive and healthful if dark bread is provided. Or if the portions of noodles are large, bread can be skipped.

"Noodles are a wonderful food, that can be used in many ways," chimed in the Chef. "They can be used from soup to dessert. Noodle soup, noodles and cheese, stuffed noodles, noodle pudding, noodles Polonaise."

"Wait a minute, what are those?" I interrupted.

WITH BREAD CRUMBS
"The Noodles Polonaise? They are the noodles cooked any way you like garnished with coarse bread crumbs fried in butter on top."

"In other words, crumbs fried in butter means Polonaise-Style."

"Oui, Madame. One thing to remember is not to boil noodles too long; when done they should respond to the bite of the teeth like spaghetti al dente. For puddings I like to cook the noodles in milk."

It's easy to fill up the family with plenty of noodles, but unless they are combined with meat or a meat alternate, the meal will contain too much starch. But that's no problem, for noodles are so bland they make a fine background for almost any food.

"How about noodles with left-over chopped ham or tongue baked in cream sauce?"

"Very good, Chef, they're also good baked with cream sauce and a half-pound of canned salmon—makes the expensive salmon literally go round."

"And what about stuffed noodles?" he suggested.

"Oh, they're wonderful! Let's have them for dinner."

"The chef got into action. 'We have everything needed. 1/2 lb. chopped meat, plenty cheese, tomato paste and noodles; I shall make an Italian sauce in hurry-up style.'"

And to add a little more suggestion to balance the meal I suggested a custard sauce for our coffee gelatin.

MONDAY DINNER

Beef Bouillon with Carrots

Stuffed Noodles

Italian Style Meat Sauce

Dark Bread Butter or Margarine

Lettuce Salad

Coffee Gelatin with Custard Sauce

Coffee or Tea Milk (children)

All Measurements Are Level

Recipes Serve Four

BEEF BOUILLON WITH CARROTS

To make the bouillon add 3 tsp. salt extract to 4 c. boiling water. Season with 1/2 tsp. onion flakes; add 1 c. coarsely grated carrots and boil 5 min. Then add 2 tsp. minced parsley and serve.

STUFFED NOODLES

Without breaking, boil 1 lb. hard noodles until almost tender in salted water or soup stock. Then drain.

Meantime prepare a quick Italian-style meat sauce to use in stuffing the noodles. Arrange a layer of noodles 1/2 in. deep in a well oiled, 6 pt. baking dish. Over this spread a generous layer of Italian meat sauce. Sprinkle thickly with grated sharp cheese. Then repeat with a second layer of noodles, sauce and cheese; top with noodles.

Cover thickly with grated sharp cheese. Dot with butter and slow bake 30 min. at 375 F. Then brown under the broiler.

Quick Italian Style Meat Sauce: Heat 2 tbsp. vegetable oil. Add 1/2 c. minced onion, 1 section minced garlic and 1/2 c. shredded green pepper. Sauté until the vegetables are soft but not brown. Then add 1/2 lb. chopped beef, hamburger steak, or equal parts of chopped pork and beef. Sauté till beginning to brown. Add 1 (6-oz.) can tomato paste, 1 c. hot water, 1-3 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. pepper and 1/2 tsp. oregano or marjoram. Simmer about 20 min. Then use in preparing stuffed noodles.

COFFEE GELATIN

Soak 1 envelope plain granulated gelatin in 2 tsp. cold coffee for 5 min. Then heat 2 c. boiling coffee beverage. Add the gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add 1/4 c. sugar, and 1/4 tsp. vanilla. Turn into a mold and chill until stiff, about 4 hours. Serve with plain cream, sweetened whipped cream, or with custard sauce. This dessert can be made with coffee left-over for 2 or 3 days and kept in a jar in the refrigerator until used.

Custard Sauce: Scald 1 c. milk in a double boiler. Meantime slightly beat 1 egg. Blend in 2 tbsp. sugar, 1/4 tsp. flour, a few grains salt and 1 tsp. milk. Stir into the scalded milk. Cook and stir about 3 min. or until the custard is thick like cream and coats the spoon. Remove from the double boiler; add 1/4 tsp. vanilla, beat with a hand beater to blend, cover and cool quickly.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

To unmold gelatin, turn the mold upside down on a serving plate. Dip a clean cloth in very hot water; wring out, wrap it around the mold and hold for a few seconds. The mold can then be lifted off.

Hostess' Favorite Recipe

By MARTHA LEE

MISS MARGARET FITZHUGH BROWN, prominent Boston artist of Ipswich st., likes to serve this Curried Chicken for Sunday night suppers. As menu accompaniments she suggests tomato juice and green peas, with a fruit dessert such as apple brown betty.

CURRIED CHICKEN

Boil a whole fowl and break up as for a fricassee. Then fry a large onion, sliced thin, in 2 tablespoons butter just till it is yellowed. Add to that 2 tsp. flour, 2 tsp. sugar, and 2 tsp.

curry powder. Brown in butter with onion. Add slowly 1 cup stock, 1 sour apple, chopped fine, salt and pepper to taste. Put chicken in skillet and pour sauce over it, heat until warm. Before serving, add 1 cup hot cream or milk. Serve with a border of boiled rice arranged around the edge of the platter.

JEWELS for the eyes is a new idea in beauty. The glorious color and brilliance of rare jewels have been captured in eye shadows... for daytime excitement... in such hues as topaz, jade, turquoise, opal, aquamarine and amethyst and for evening wear in deeper tones. An interesting way to accent the eyes is to blend a light color like turquoise over the eyelids... then apply the darker sapphire shade close to the lashes. If this is an era of fabulous feminine beauty, let's make the most of it... and start with the beauty of the eyes—R. M.

Wife Battling for Rights

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SOMETIMES I think the chief cause of unhappiness among American wives is the failure of their husbands to give them the companionship they want and need. Letter after letter comes to my desk from women who complain that their husbands come home at night, eat the dinner and then do one of three things: Retire behind a book or newspaper, turn on the radio and want to listen in silence, or go to sleep.

The following paragraph from one of the letters in this morning's mail is typical of hundreds of others:

"My husband doesn't care to have friends. He doesn't want me to have friends or go any place. He is very silent and irritable and not a companion to me at all. He just comes home, eats his supper, turns on the radio, and one doesn't even dare to talk to him. He never wants me to invite anybody in, nor do I go anywhere. This goes on evening after evening."

WIFE MUST DECIDE

It is easy to understand, of course, that most wives hesitate to assert themselves and act contrary to their husband's wishes, even when they would be right in doing so, because they fear scenes. But there are times when a scene or two for a good cause can clear the air and end by introducing a much more wholesome atmosphere in the home. A wife who continually bears her grievances in silence may avoid trouble, it is true. But she is not making anything any better for herself by doing so.

Of course, it all depends on whether she values her objective enough to want to take the risk. I should think that when a wife is forced to spend evening after evening alone with a husband who pays not the slightest attention to her, she would be ready to risk almost anything if there were the least chance of improving her situation.

CHILDHOOD TO BLAME

If he wants to sit home with his radio, I think she should assert her right to invite friends of her own in, or to go out with them. And I believe, in most cases of this kind, if the wife did this, she would in time win her point. She might not get any more companionship from her husband, but at least she would get some from her friends.

This particular wife asks if I think there is any possibility that her husband's personality could be changed. She thinks his childhood with an unsympathetic mother is responsible for his taciturnity and irritability, and says she has been told that childhood environment has a lifelong effect on personality.

I think I am right in saying that this is true for people who do not realize the necessity of counteracting the effects of an unfortunate childhood by doing something to change their own personality. If she could get her husband to see that he were in need of change, and he really wished to do so, he certainly could. But the realization would have to come from himself before anything could be done.

YOUR CRUSADE

I wish to be recorded against Senate Bill 264, known as the Nolen-Miles Bill, and I request you to vote against it. (Signed)

(address)

(city or town)

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, SAT., FEB. 27, 1948

FILL OUT this coupon and mail it as soon as possible to your State Senator or Representative or send it at once to the Legal Affairs Committee, State House, Boston, if you want to do YOUR part to defeat one of the most vicious legislative propositions ever made in the Massachusetts General Court.

If you can afford the time, plan to appear before the Legal Affairs Committee next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, when it will hold a public hearing on the Nolen-Miles Bill at Gardner Auditorium in the State House.

The Nolen-Miles Bill would destroy the high standards of humanity which have distinguished our State from the time of its inception.

If your dog or cat, or your neighbor's, happened to be one of the thousands of animals which stray from home and land in pounds annually, it could be seized after six days by a licensed experimenter under the provisions of this bill and used as a worthless guinea pig in the supposed interest of science or industry.

The operator of the pound could not stop the seizure, for the Nolen-Miles Bill threatens him with a heavy fine if he tries to obstruct its purposes.

He might prefer to give the lost pet to a child who would love it and be kind to it, but the bill would tie his hands, since from its start to its finish, it brazenly implies that the scalpel is more important than sentimental.

Nor would the owner of the pet which was butchered by a vivisector be able to seek redress in the courts, for the Nolen-Miles Bill deprives him of the privilege.

THE MEASURE mentions the propriety of rendering animals insensible to pain, yet a careful reading of its contents—and loopholes—reveals that a dog or cat completely conscious could be boiled alive, be ripped apart or drained of its entire blood supply—if the barbarianism had the specified kind of authorization.

In view of the fact that many domesticated animals—colliers and setters, particularly—wander many miles from home and become lost for several weeks, and sometimes for months, almost every pet in the Commonwealth would be in the gravest danger of becoming experimental material on a vivisector's slab, and the most valuable show specimen would be as much imperilled as the humblest mongrel.

We all know how loyally and faithfully the dog has served mankind throughout history; how he has dragged drowning children from rivers and lakes, how he has awakened sleeping households endangered by fire in the night, how he has risked his own life to save his master's, how he has braved enemy bullets to keep soldiers from falling into death traps, how he has brought hope and courage to the blind, the aged, and infirm, as well as the little boy and girl yearning for companionship.

SURELY, AT THIS LATE DATE, WE CANNOT BRING OURSELVES TO DESECRATE THE NOBLE ANIMAL IN THE MANNER ORDAINED BY THE NOLEN-MILES BILL, WHOSE AIMS AND PRINCIPLES ARE FOREIGN TO EVERY DECENT HUMAN INSTINCT.

We cannot too strongly urge all believers in humanity to write immediately to their Senators and Representatives and to plan to attend the public hearing on the measure Tuesday morning.

MASSACHUSETTS MUST REMAIN THE MOST HUMANE STATE IN THE UNION.

WE CANNOT ALLOW OURSELVES TO BE UNIVERSALLY BRANDED AS THE CRUELEST AND MOST UNFEELING.

The bird on you withered bough

That lately mourned her mate

Has found another comrade now

Such changes all await!

If nature has decreed it so,

With all above, and all below,

Let us like them forget our vow

If I should quit your arms tonight

And chance to die before 'twas light,

I would advise you—and you might

Love again tomorrow.

NOW ONE of the country's largest retailing organizations is offering for sale for the sum of 98 cents a hair trimmer that "shaves, trims and shaves." It is designed for use by men between haircuts. Naturally, its use is going to make the time between said haircuts much longer. The sale of these trimmers is expected to be unusually good in sections where men are rebelling against the current high prices of hair cuts.

PASSING BY Sonja Henie, Skating arena Sonja's first performance as a skater in the U. S. A. took place in Brooklyn in 1930. This performance was sponsored by the Norwegian population of my old neighborhood in Bay Ridge. That section has always been popular with Norwegians and Swedes. There was, in the yesterday, a dance hall in Bay Ridge greatly patronized by Swedes. Some pals and myself, though not of Scandinavian origin, used to go dancing at this hall, so we could welcome to America some of the beautiful Swedish blondes among the new arrivals. A sort of a local good neighbor movement. That was very hospitable and patriotic of you don't you think?

HORSES & WOMEN: Many women say the average stockings do not wear well. They have complained to the retailers. The retailers have complained to the manufacturers. And so what? The manufacturers say the reason stockings don't wear as well as expected is because women don't buy the right sizes. That the average female purchases hosiery carelessly and does not take into consideration all the details of her leg measurements. If your wife complains her stockings wear out too quickly call this to her attention. My knowledge of the hosiery retailing situation is meager, but it seems to me if what the manufacturers say is true, there might be a good opportunity for some enterprising person to start a "made-to-order" stocking shop. This enterprise could also be adapted to the mail order trade.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q—What was the full name of the "alphabetically named" child you mentioned several years ago? A—An infant born in Liverpool, England, in 1889, was christened Anna Bertha Cecelia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypatia Inez Jane Kate Louise Maud Nora Ophelia Quince Rebecca Starkey Teresa Ulysses Venus Winifred Xenophon Yveta Zeno Poppers. Q—Who introduced the song "Peg O' My Heart" and when? A—Don't know who introduced it. Was first popularized in 1913.

YOUNG WIDOWS: Our Horses & Women Dept. long since reported the most successful of all husband hunters to be young widows in their late twenties or early thirties. Against such competition, our experts claimed, the average bachelorette of the same age had little chance. Recently issued statistics indicate the young widow now has five times as much chance of getting a husband as a bachelorette of the same age. What is the reason? An easy question. Young widows understand men better than bachelorettes. We, therefore, suggest bachelorettes make a close study of the husband acquiring technique used by young widows.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: Johnny Weissmuller is said to be the possessor of the largest bed in Hollywood. It is eight feet long and seven feet wide. Among the female stars, Joan Crawford has the largest bed. It is six feet long and seven feet wide. . . . The British Museum was founded in 1753 A. D., by the use of the proceeds of a lottery. This lottery was directed by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Gambling is not a sin, but a luxury. As a luxury it should be taxed in one way or another.

GIVE HIM CREDIT: Note it stated Carrie Jacobs Bond's "three best songs" are "I Love You Truly," "The End of A Perfect Day" and "Just A Wearyin' For You." The last named is my favorite love song. It is continually referred to as "One of Carrie Jacobs Bond's songs." The fact that Frank L. Stanton wrote the words of "Just A Wearyin' For You," certainly the most important factor in the success of this song is usually forgotten.

"I DO wish you'd have those run-down heels of yours fixed!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1948 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

ED FLYNN, Democratic boss of the Bronx, should be the last man to complain that the Communists defeated him in an off-election for a member of Congress. The radical forces won 2-1; but the interesting fact is that in one of the most disciplined Democratic districts, where Democrats came out to vote with religious zeal and always won, about 50,000 out of 96,000 stayed away from the polls.

Ed Flynn

The real candidate up there was not Leo Isacson, who ran for Congress, but Henry Wallace, who made this particular election a test of his following in New York State. The radicals concentrated on this district with the rigid disciplines of their party. Henry Wallace, Vito Marcantonio, Ferdinand C. Smith and all the galaxy spoke to the voters. The opposition brought up Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, which produced nothing.

WHY DID THE 50,000 stay away from the polls? You may accept it as correct that they were Democrats, and had they voted, the radicals would have been defeated. The radicals built this campaign on these issues: 1—Our relations with Soviet Russia; 2—The Palestine question; 3—The Negro. The wildest emotions were stimulated over these questions, so that in a district of complex racial and religious interest, voters had to be pro-war with Soviet Russia, pro-Arab, and pro-white supremacy to vote for Wallace's opponent. It was a neat trick and it worked. Ed Flynn and his machine were no match for it. The voters stayed home.

IT IS POSSIBLE to exaggerate the importance of this election. The complexion of the district is unusual even in this cosmopolitan city. When I lived there in my youth, it was made up largely of Irish Catholics, Germans and Jews. In recent years, it has become largely Jewish and Italian with a tremendous influx of Negroes from Harlem. Thus, the Palestine and Negro questions loomed larger than any other. The Democratic organization remains largely Irish and is out of touch with the new population.

Furthermore, Ed Flynn, as a Roosevelt supporter, helped to build the American Labor Party as part of the New Deal amalgam. It is interesting to note that the American Labor Party does not even appear in the index of his book, "You're the Boss," although it has become his main political problem. He does, however, refer to it in the text to explain that since Mr. Roosevelt's death, he has not accepted endorsement from that party for any of his candidates. That is also since he failed in his mission to Moscow to convince Stalin that Thomas Aquinas is a better guide than Karl Marx. Stalin was apparently not impressed by Flynn.

TWO FACTS, however, do stand out as a result of this off-election:

1—The Palestine question will loom large in the 1948 election in areas where there is a density of Jewish voters. This means that in states like New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and California, candidates for public office will debate the virtues of Jew and Arab, the wickedness of the British and the intractability of the State Department. It will be used for all it is worth.

2—Were the election held now, Wallace would get between 800,000 and 1,000,000 votes in New York State. In 1944, Roosevelt carried New York State by 316,591. This majority included 468,405 American Labor Party votes. Actually, then it was the American Labor Party which gave the State to Roosevelt and defeated Dewey. Granting what is not so, that Truman is as popular as Roosevelt was, it is obvious that Truman cannot carry New York State in 1948 under any circumstances, as long as Wallace is a candidate.

Further, it is doubtful whether Truman can carry it even were Wallace not a candidate. On the other hand, Dewey defeated Mead for Governor by 687,161 votes, Mead having the American Labor Party endorsement nevertheless. In a word, in both 1944 and 1946, Dewey showed strength as a Republican while Democrats had to have Communist assistance on both occasions.

THESE FIGURES illuminate all current calculations, for even were Wallace not a candidate, they are indicative of the trend in a state which has 47 electoral votes.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 21—The Mark Hellinger properties will live on with Robert Lord's executive producer, Lord has asked for and obtained his release from Metro, and has joined with Humphrey Bogart and A. Morgan Marie in producing the properties Hellinger owned, among them, the rights to the Ernest Hemingway novels.

Bogey must have had a quick change of heart, for when I talked with him a few nights ago, he didn't know whether he would ever make one of the pictures he and Mark planned. But he will be starred in them, just as Mark planned, and I know that's the way Mark would have wanted it.

I'm wondering if the Lord-Bogart productions will be released through M-G-M, now that John Huston, Bogey's favorite director, will be on that lot.

Mark's last picture, "The Naked City," will have its world premiere at the Capitol Theater in New York, March 3. The proceeds go to the National Heart Foundation—a worthy cause.

I HEAR FROM an authentic source that the Vali, David Selznick's Italian star, has been loaned to C. B. De Mille for "Samson and Delilah."

I have wondered about Vali's accent, which isn't Italian at all. It seems she spent a good deal of time in Czechoslovakia.

C. B. gets going with "Samson and Delilah" in the fall. I never can think of "Samson and Delilah" without thinking of Caruso singing "Samson" so thrillingly at the Metropolitan Opera House.

RKO is also talking about Vali for "Weep No More," the Joseph Cotten epic.

SPENCER TRACY takes the choo-choo to New York with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Knopf and George Cukor, and Spence says he's going out to Europe. I wonder if he really is? The Knopfs and Cukor are going to London for the express purpose of seeing "Edward, My Son," which will star Spence and Deborah Kerr.

I know Spence so well, and he thinks he's going now, but will he actually go when the time comes? He's not much on traveling too far from the home base.

If you do go, Spence, dear, why don't you go to Ireland in June? I hope to be there on my vacation if my boss gives me permission.

IF MRS. ED GARDNER cheerfully murders her husband in cold blood, she will probably be acquitted.

Here's what happened: A school teacher telephoned to inquire why the Gardner heir, Ed, Jr., age 4 years, was not in class. "His father took him to school hours ago," said his mother. "He must be there."

With the teacher now thoroughly alarmed, the two women were on the verge of reporting a kidnapping to the police when Ed, Jr., strolled into the house with his old man.

At the last minute, and without telling anyone, "Duffy" decided to take the little boy to Tom Breneman's broadcast, "Breakfast in Hollywood."

A good time was had by all except Mrs. Gardner, who is still saying a few thousand words to her husband.

WELL, JANE WYMAN has done it. She is living on a ranch near Las Vegas where she has taken up her residence preparatory to filing suit for divorce from Ronald Reagan.

Up to the last moment, Ronnie was hopeful that Jane would change her mind, but apparently she felt there was no turning back once she made up her mind. It isn't too late now if Jane wants to change her mind. Ronnie and the two children would love to have her come home and forget the divorce nonsense.

I SAW "High Button Shoes," starring Phil Silvers, who I was amazed when Mack Sennett told me that not only had he not been paid for the Mack Sennett ballet, which they use, but no one had even asked him for permission. That's the big hit of the show. Mack says he created those bathing costumes himself, which Gloria Swanson, Mabel Normand, Carole Lombard, Phyllis Haver, and all the other beauties wore. The Keystone Cops, which made thousands much, were also the invention of Mack's fertile brain.

How nice it would be, now that the play is doing so well, to have sent Mack a good-sized check. It would have been wonderful and probably would have stopped the law suit Mack has filed.

FRANK ROSENBERG has bought "Night Cry," the William Stuart novel that is fast hitting on the best-seller lists.

He is so hepped on the story that he will produce it as an independent for his Colony Pictures. Frank hopes for either Fred MacMurray or Dana Andrews—detective type gents themselves—to play the detective who commits murder. Well, Rosenberg can dream, can't he?

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Arthur Hombrow, who was quite sick, is back home, I'm glad to say. Most producers these days have ulcers, but Arthur is different. It was his nerves that gave him trouble, a pinched nerve, his M.D. said.

When Rea Little was here, she and Charlie Chaplin had a serious talk about making a picture together in England. Well, I'll bet Bea could make England forget its grievance against their countryman.

Greer Garson, who has been feeling miserable, took a night off to dine with Otto Preminger at Cesar's Supper Club. She hasn't been anywhere in weeks.

Sonny Tufts has checked in to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital because an old back injury has been causing him a lot of trouble.

Mickey Huston, the Chicago big business man, who gave Mrs. Lee Marshall such a rush, is sending Marily Maxwell two dozen gardenias every day.

Mickey Walker, former middleweight and welterweight champion boxer, is in town talking over a reconciliation with his estranged wife, Maude. They have been separated 19 years, and she still looks the best to him. Mickey is now editor of the Police Gazette.

John Yuhasz, producer-writer for Major Productions, is the proud father of a baby girl.

I received photographs of Jack Smith, the Sales clerk, who looks so much like Jimmy Walker, and I'll say the resemblance is uncanny.

Judy Canova, who was planning a European trip, had an offer to make a hill-billy picture in England. The hill-billy epics are extremely popular with the English.

Edith Gwynn better not say any more that she is no good on the radio. She's up against top troupers in "Leave It to the Girls" and, believe me, she more than held her own.

That wasn't Gene Tierney with Oleo Cassini at the Valley Tail of the Cock. She was glamazon Dorothy Ford, and the hand-kissing game was enjoying himself.

BARK OFF THE CHERRY TREE.

When Washington crossed the Delaware, he was rowed by members of Col. Glover's amphibious regiment of Marblehead fishermen.

The Marbleheaders got the whole army safely across through the ice floes in a mid-winter tempest. Three months earlier they had saved the army by ferrying it back to New York, in a dense fog, after the disastrous defeat on Long Island. . . . The famous painting by Emanuel Leutze shows Washington standing in the boat. The true story is that when he stepped into the boat, he barked at Col. Knox: "If you'll move that fat shape of yours, Knox, I'll be able to sit down!" . . . Washington's private library was bought by the Boston Athenaeum on Beacon St. in 1948 for only $460. Today it is priceless. . . . At 15, George Washington got his mother's permission to join the British Navy. A midshipman's warrant was obtained. His baggage was put aboard one of the king's ships in the Potomac. But at the last minute, his mother changed her mind. She refused to let him sail. She saved him for his destiny and ours.

SATURDAY VARIETY. Friends of another candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor say Congressman John F. Kennedy has decided NOT to run for Governor. . . . Spotlight suggests calling the Boston College Eagles the Owls. They play five night games next fall. . . . Herb Lewis, music, book and radio man, and song-writer, was in Gen. Sherman's March to the Sea. A young lad in 1915, he carried a musket as a Union soldier in Griffith's great film, "Birth of a Nation." . . . The real reason why we have a "Panic" at the Kenmore on Sundays but can on weekdays: The State's Sunday censors simply banned it. Boston's Censor Walter Milliken and his assistant, Bea Whelton, worked for hours to cut out the objectionable parts while still preserving the film's continuity. . . . Messrs. Geary and Livingston, the contracting Joes (and baseball bugs) made a prediction to us last week. They said Babe Ruth would name Bill Dickey as the greatest manager he played under (greater than Joe McCarthy or Miller Huggins of the Yankees). This week the Babe did.

CAT STORY: A Boston woman thought so much of her cat that, when it died the other day, she called for a cemetery. They told her to put it in a box and bring it over, they'd do the rest. . . . When she got to the subway turnstile at Park st., she had trouble getting her dime out of her handbag. She didn't want to lay her precious bundle down in the crowd, and was fumbling away, when a man stepped up and said: "Can't I hold that for you." She replied: "Oh, thank you so much. It's very valuable. I didn't want to risk losing it down." . . . Then she dropped in her dime and turned to get her "valuable bundle. The man was gone. . . . So if you saw a dead cat in a box on the Common, it was thrown there by a disgusted thief.

HOW IT REALLY HAPPENED: On Jan. 22, 1932, Bozo Snyder, the pantomimist, spoke the only words he has ever uttered on-stage. It was in a Kansas City theater, with the audience watching. Bozo said: "I do." He was married to Gertrude Hayes, Jr., as his wife. . . . On March 9, 1938, Gertrude divorced Bozo in Boston. She said he was cruel to her every day (and not in pantomime). . . . Worked as a singer, Gertrude sent her daughter, Carol, to Mt. St. Joseph Academy to give her the best education she could. But later Carol wanted to go to public school and entered Brighton High. . . . Thursday, at 8 p. m., Gertrude received a telephone call at the Petty Lounge, Tremont and Stuart, where she sings nightly. Carol, now 14, wanted to go bowling. Mother said no. . . . Twenty minutes later Gertrude was pinch-hitting for the pianist and playing the nation's No. 1 sheet-music hit: "Now Is the Hour." She was interrupted by a call from the clerk of the hotel where she and Carol live: "Your daughter's run away." Carol had packed a suitcase. A girl charm carried it down a fire-escape, while Carol and two schoolmates from the West End hurried through the lobby. . . . Gertrude cruised the city with two policemen, checking at rail and bus terminals. No clues were found. . . . Near midnight, Gertrude returned to the Petty Lounge and her car. . . . Yesterday she spent all day running down rumors, false reports. Last night again, she sang in the lounge. . . . The show must go on!

BREAKING THE ICE in television: Sam Silverman's Calahan A. C. has given Richard Salinger, ad-agency exclusive television rights for his boxing shows. Salinger will find sponsors, pick the station outlet. . . . Blurbs: Those courthouse corridor conditions, now in the headlines, were written-up in this column last Oct. 15. And that police mess, nearly a month before you read about it elsewhere. . . . Weather: As many as 79,376 persons in one day have dialed WEEI 7-4242. Now, the Met there is advertising: "E. B. Rideout, WEEI meteorologist, says 'It's hot! Call Northside 777.'" Just a plug for the Met firm, but so many people have called Northside 777 that the telephone company investigated to find out what it all meant. . . . Pay as you leave: Graefie Fields had to fork over $6500 income tax in advance of leaving due before leaving the U. S. to keep a date in Nassau, Bahamas. And Uncle Sam wouldn't take a check! . . . A movie theater patron in Gray, Ga., told the manager he brought Anthony Quinn's death scene in "Black Gold" a great performance. The next day he had a heart attack and his own death scene. It wasn't acting. . . . Fox, Paramount, N. E. Television Co. and Matheson Radio (in addition to the regular stations) are all asking the FCC for television channels here. . . . Francis Craig's "Beg Your Pardon," which he introduced at the RKO-Boston with Blind Singer Bob Lamb, is now one of the nation's first four among the disks. . . . So many orders for "Carousel," due at our Opera House Mar. 1, that the mail is being delivered by truck.

FOR THE NAVY: Comdr. Sam Read, Jr., public-information officer, says its enlisted men numbered 434,000 last July 1. But next July 1 the enlistments of 232,000 will have expired. And the required operating strength is 395,000. That's why next week is Fill the Fleet Week. The Navy offers job-security, technical training, retirement as early as age 37, with a life income as high as $107 a month. . . . Shifting the scene: Mickey Redstone moved the three Marx sisters of East Boston in their acrobat act at the big Archbishop Cushing Charity Fund show at the Garden. So after performing around town for practically pennies, they were carried right into the big time at Mickey's Latin Quarter. . . . Singer Dolly Dawn at the Quarter will disk-it on WORL Monday afternoon at five. Dolly's a night-club natural: "If I had a nickel, tell you what I'd do (Baby) look at me! I'd spend it all on candy, give it all to you." . . . But topping Dolly on the bill is Lenzy Kent. He makes even Dolly roar. One night, Lenzy calls Las Vegas, "lost wages."

Broadway's Voice By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—Overtures have been made to Leo Durocher to assist Van Johnson in attaining an authentic ball playing style for his new baseball picture. But Leo, with "Happy" Chandler and other critics in mind, is proceeding with caution. . . . Arnold Reuben, one of the town's most famous restaurateurs, is seriously ill.

John Alden Tabbot evidently found the going too rugged with that nonblubbed beauty he took to Florida. His newest and hottest romance since Lana is the very social Patricia Fagg.

CLARK GABLE definitely would go into "Command Decision" or any other Broadway play, as rumored elsewhere. He goes into "Angel's Flight" (the film) within the next month or so, and after that he'll take the European trip he's been yearning for since he returned from the war.

concerns a young actress and the effect Broadway has on her. . . . Margaret Sullivan is out of the hospital and much better after a serious ear operation.

Monasha Skunkin's success at La Martinique has the 10 per-centers skurrying down to Second ave. to see if there aren't more like him in the Jewish theater. . . . Maurice Chevalier asked and didn't get a quarter of a million to do a flicker at Paramount. . . . Word around Tin Pan Alley is that the Petrillo ban is about to be lifted.

THE British story that Dolores Gray of "Annie Get Your Gun" (London version) plans to marry English movie star Michael Wendling is complicated by the fact that he still must get a divorce from his present wife. . . . Lois Andrews caused chuckles and lifted eyebrows in Hollywood by predicting—in print—that Lana Turner and Bob Topping will never marry because of "his lousy dancing." (The quotes are Miss Andrews'). She noted that Lana sat down after few minutes, and "everybody knows that Lana loves to dance." Considering West Coast opinion is that Miss A. is auditioning for a pulled coif.

BILL BENDIX, who will play Babe Ruth on the screen, "bats left, throws right," as the sports scribes put it. As the Babe was a straight left, Bill will have some fun learning to throw with his portside wing. . . . George Sanders has deserted the local glamor creatures for that of all people, the estranged Mrs. Sanders. She's at the Plaza and they've been dating for days.

TOPS IN TOWN: The Ames Brothers' new Decca disc, "Tell Me A Story" . . . Robert Young's Grade A performance in "Relentless" the Technicolor Western. . . . Horace Heidt's stage show at the Capitol. . . . Sirion steak with Tannaz Sauce at the Sheraton. . . . Maggi McNellis' effervescent star interviews at the Latin Quarter luncheons. . . . The excitingly scripted celluloid newspaper yarn, "Call Northside 777."

20 The Sly Game of Intercollegiate Contract-Busting

By AUSTEN LAKE

SIXTEEN SILVER DOLLARS to the gentleman for answering this question. "When is a contract not a contract?" provided due consideration is given by both sides and the agreement is legally valid.

That's correct! "When it's signed by a college football coach." Give that gentleman sixteen silver simoleons and tickets to next week's production. Now, the lady down there with the fruit salad on her bonnet. Do colleges respect each other's contracts when they wish to hire away a rival's coach? Noooo! I'm sorrreeee! They are as quick to persuade a coach to break his sworn word and have more contempt for contract law than any prize fight manager or alloy pug!

Compounded Hypocrisy

THIS BRINGS ME to the latest contract "jumps" by Dr. McMullin from Indiana, George Sauer from Kansas U., Howie Odell from Yale and Ed McKeever from San Francisco, each of whom scrapped his legal vows in order to accept better paying jobs. Each had contracts, duly signed and witnessed with unexpired terms still to run, from McMullin's seven years, to Sauer's five, to Odell's and McKeever's two. They were iron clad agreements in any court. But did that deter them from breaking faith? Or did it restrain the Detroit Lions, Annapolis, Washington U., and the Chicago Rockets from luring them, illegally, for more pay?

Of course, the Lions and Rockets, as professionals, are not expected to show conscience in promotional matters. But Annapolis and Washington U., as idealists supposed to teach youth higher principles, contributed to the delinquency of the coaches in broken faith.

I think one could call this a "compounded hypocrisy." In which a college coach signs a contract with a mental reservation to abide by its terms until some other football firm offers him a better salary. In which case he has no compunction about jumping the contract. The college is bound by its obligations to the coach, yet the coach not only tears up the treaty at his whim, but induces his assistant coaches, also under contract, to accompany him to his new job. Which is what McMillin, Sauer, Odell, McKeever and other college coaches are doing every year. What kind of contracts are those?

I will tell you! When McMillin, friend of mine though he be, broke his covenant at Indiana and took the Lion's $30,000 for five years, a Detroit reporter asked if he was in complete charge. "O, yes," said Bo, "I'm boss. If they (meaning his new employers) get in my way, I'll pull my contract on 'em."

But what if Indiana pulls out of the contract with seven years still to run, on McMahon?

[illegible]

TO BEGIN WITH AN UNETHICAL show-up which I understand is planned for the fall at Kansas City and San Francisco will seduce coaches from sister institutions in direct violation of sworn oaths. Sixty-four of the colleges which in a few minutes to appear, degraded, betrayed youngsters and large sums of money. The "sporting" character of the "coach" shall not exempt his neighbor "coach" what kind of integrity do they impart to those budding barristers? Or is the science of common law actually a science to find flaws and loopholes in the law? Is it a science to slide under a foot a halfback in a sliding through a broken field? Delete that question! I think you already know the answer.

Let you argue that only a few colleges kidnap each other's coaches while under contract, I will say that Harvard, whose law school furnishes some of our finest legal brains, did the same thing when it lured Richard Killer in No. Adams Fight Killed by Ezzard Charles

CHICAGO, Feb. 21 (AP)—Sam Barou di, 21, New York and Akron boxer, died in a hospital today, six hours after he was knocked out by Ezzard Charles, leading contender for the light-heavyweight crown. Baroudi, who fatally injured another boxer in a bout last August, died from a brain hemorrhage, physicians said.

DEATH STALKS—Sam Baroudi cringes after taking a terrific left to head from Ezzard Charles in fourth round. Baroudi was kayoed in 10th, died six hours later.

Baroudi Killed One Boxer, Critically Hurt Another Here

By SAM BROGNA

Sam Baroudi, 21, Akron, O., light heavyweight who died today in Chicago six hours after he was knocked out by Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, was the same fighter who fatally injured a boxer and critically injured another in two bouts in the Berkshire County during the last two years.

When the Akron, O., Negro invaded the western part of the state in '46, he was an unknown. He participated in seven fights in Berkshire County as a middle-weight.

His climb was rapid. Last year, he shifted to the light-heavy-weight class, fighting in this division five times in and around North Adams.

In a benefit fight for the Glenn Newton Smith family last September 5, Baroudi lost a split decision to Roy Miller of Kansas City.

Bleeding From Nostrils In 9th. Says Charles

CHICAGO, Feb. 21—Dr. J. J. Drammis, Illinois Athletic Commission physician, who examined Baroudi at 1 p. m. yesterday, said:

"The examination was a thorough one, and before he went into the ring Baroudi was in perfect physical condition."

Charles, the nation's No. 1 contender for the light-heavyweight crown, appeared at the hospital at 5:10 a. m. (CST), one-half hour after Baroudi breathed his last.

Charles, who kayoed Baroudi with a solid left to the pit of the stomach in the last round of their 10-round feature bout at the stadium, said he noticed "something wrong with Baroudi" in the ninth round.

"I noticed this," Charles said. "He was bleeding from both nostrils. I never seen a fighter do that before."

Charles' manager, Jack Mintz, confirmed this, and added: "I noticed Baroudi stumbled as he went to his stool at the end of the ninth round. But I was afraid he would lose the fight, so I told Ezzard to level it on him in the 10th."

After Baroud's death, Jake Mintz, Charles' manager, issued a statement saying the boxer's death was "one of those things that happen in the fight game." He added, "Charles was trying to win. It was him or the other fellow. Charles hit him in the pit of the stomach in the 10th round and he went down. Baroud had taken a severe beating in the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds, and it looked to me as though he had no resistance to fight back."

"Charles and I were at the hospital awaiting the outcome. We've been up all night. I told the hospital authorities to get him the best, regardless of expense. We have offered to help the Baroudi family in any way we possibly can. It was a regrettable thing, and we're sorry it had to happen to us."

Charles said that "all I can say is what my manager just said. That speaks for me."

There were nine recorded deaths at the ring last year, and 11 in 1946.

Listed among the 1947 fatalities was Jimmy Doyle, who succumbed after his welterweight title bout with Champion Ray "Sugar" Robinson at Cleveland on June 23. Doyle was knocked out in the eighth round and died later of head injuries.

Other 1917 deaths in the United States included: Travis Hudson, Sausalito, La., amateur; Tony Sonzo, Brooklyn amateur; J. T. Horton, Long Beach, Calif., Navy amateur; Benny Cleveland, Los Angeles bantamweight; Glenn Newton Smith, Philadelphia middleweight; James Wilander, San Deaths in 1946 included Dave Mason of Cleveland; Nat Hines, of Philadelphia; Harvey Weiss, of New York; Del Hardy, of Bountiful, Utah; Bobby Burton, of Pittsburgh, and Billy Brown, of New Brunswick, N. J.

One of the most prominent boxing fatalities occurred in Madison Square Garden, New York, 15 years ago. Ernie Schaaf died after a knockout by Primo Carnera, then on his way to the heavyweight championship.

MOTHER COLLAPSES

AKRON, O., Feb. 21 (INS)
Samuel Crandall, father of the ill-fated Sam Baroudi, left Akron by automobile this morning with officials of the J. R. Evans funeral home to bring back the fighter's body from Chicago.

Earlier plans by Mrs. Lydia Crandall, Baroudi's mother, Mrs. Thelma Arnold, 23, his sister, and Miss Thelma Pryor, 18, his fiancée, to fly to Chicago were cancelled shortly after the family received word of the Negro boxer's death.

A spokesman at the funeral home said a hearse would arrive in Chicago sometime this afternoon. He said no further details of the funeral have been arranged.

Mrs. Crandall, 53, reported suffering from a heart ailment, collapsed shortly after receiving word that her son died as a result of injuries suffered in his bout with Ezzard Charles last night.

Hapless Celts Shorthanded Against Stags

The luckless Celtics, still trying to seal a playoff berth in the Basketball Association of America, make another attempt tomorrow night when they meet the strong Chicago Stags at the Arena, starting at 9 o'clock.

Instead of gaining ground towards their objective, the Celts seem to be getting further away. A week ago, they needed only half a game to assure themselves of at least a third place playoff spot, but today, they need a full game.

While they were dropping two, the Providence Steam Rollers, the team they are trying to eliminate, slugged the Stags and then lost the same night the locals dropped their 14th consecutive overtime game to Baltimore.

Coach Honey Russell will have only nine men available for this fray. He may not even have the full use of Mike Bloom who came down the other day with a bad left heel.

Russell plans to put George Munroe on Zaslofsky's tail in an attempt to halt the fleet-footed Stag forward while the task of stopping Masek will fall to either Bloom or big Ed Sadowski.

In the schoolboy preliminary game, Malden Catholic takes on Mission High, starting at 7:30 p. m.

H. C. Proves Zone Defense No Bugaboo by Romp Over BU

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

The highly discussed zone defense will not work against Holy Cross it was proved last night at the Arena when the Crusaders whirled over a pretty fair Boston University basketball team, 62 to 36.

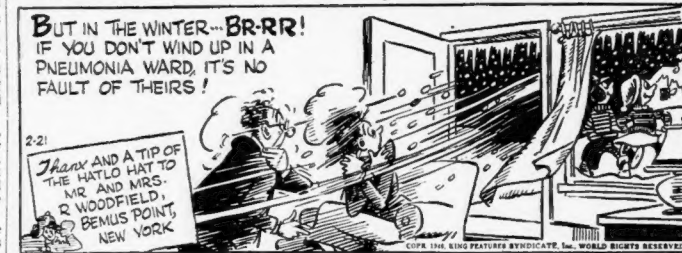

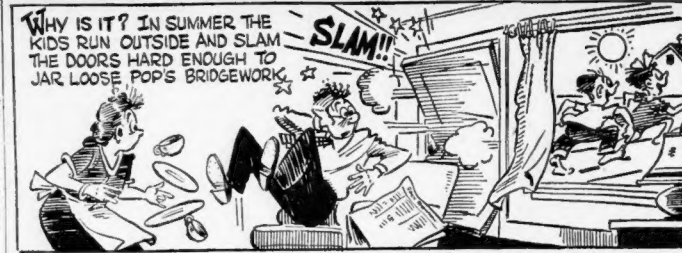

Boston College used the system effectively last Tuesday in taking a first half lead over the Cross. B. U. used it for the first 7½ minutes of play. But what a difference.

Holy Cross flooded the defense with the greatest precision seen here this season. Time after time the Purple stood back and shot long straight ones which slipped gently through the wicked. Cousy, in particular, was effective from the outside.

After the game B. U. coach Russ Peterson said: "I thought the zone would slow them down. You saw what happened. I have been coaching college basketball for 12 years and I can say without a doubt that the Holy Cross

Montreal Seeks 5th Straight Over GBI Stars

By PAT HORNE

The flashy pucksters of Catholic High of Montreal will be displaying their ability to the local hockey fans for the fourteenth time when they clash with the G. B. I. All-Stars at the Boston Arena Monday afternoon at 2 p. m.

The local representatives were selected earlier this week by a board of the league's coaches, Arlington, the loop's champs, and Belmont rated top honors as they placed a quartet of skaters on the first string.

Of the ten forwards selected the Red and Grey placed three men. Bill Leary, Joe Shea and Ed Kiniry all got the nod. Ed Emery, a standout defenseman, is Arlington's fourth member of the squad.

The Belmont boys wearing the G. B. I. colors will be forwards Roy Butt and "Skip" Vigliorini, defenseman Dick Sylvia and goalie Paul Kelley were also chosen.

The remainder of the first squad will be comprised of Dick Manley, Frank O'Grady and Paul Norcross of Stoneham; Medford will be represented by the league's high scorer Charlie Abele and goalie Randy Whitley; Dick Rigazio and Bill Lee are the Cambridge Latin delegates and Newton placed Dan Keefe among the All-Stars.

Although in his first year of coaching, Eddie Burns, who brought Arlington the G. B. I. title, was elected as coach of the All-Star Squad.

Most followers of the local league are counting the youthfulness of the Catholic High sextet as a strike against the invaders in addition to the fact that three of the players have been held back by illness or injury throughout the season.

Johnny Drury, a standout performer for the Montreal sextet, was stricken with appendicitis last month and is a doubtful starter. Jacques Deslauriers has been ill throughout the campaign and Art Petit, who was being counted on to open the season as the Catholic's left winger, never did get started since he broke his wrist two days before their opening contest.

Even with three of the Canadian stars side-lined the "locals" will still have a tough battle since their opponents have a world of reserve power. Fred Gagnon, the invaders goal tender, is said to be one of the best in his area. Johnny Ellison and Maurice Bourbonnais, the wingers, are speedy, shifty and elusive.

The remainder of the team consists of Mario Luciani, John Durack, Moe Strachan, Lorne Golden, Mark Campeau and Ed Legrie.

The G. B. I. stick-handlers also possess plenty of speed plus a carload of scoring power. Charlie Abele has 23 points to his credit. Dick Rigazio lit the lamps 12 times and came through with four assists and Joe Shea, Arlington's "Blind Bombshell" also totaled 16 points.

The All-Stars have captured only four contests and will be out for revenge of the 5 to 1 drubbing they suffered last year.

The G. B. I. second team, piloted by Jack Culhane of Cambridge Latin, which will meet the North Shore All-Stars in the preliminary game, is made up of at least one man from each sextet in the loop. Melrose placed four for top honors and Medford three.

BILL BEVENS SIGNS

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—

Flood (Bill) Bevens, who came within one out of pitching a no-hitter only to have it turned into defeat in the fourth game of the last World Series, has signed his 1948 contract, the New York Yankees announced today.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—

The Beau Jack comeback is stalled. All because of a tough East Side New Yorker named Terry Young and a lone point on the scoreboard of Referee Frank Fullam. The fight fans' favorite comment, "It could have been a draw," was appropriate last night. Even the officials were split to say nothing of the crowd of 14,923 which paid $63,317. All agreed it was the best fight of the winter season.

Judge Charley Shortell liked Young and Judge Harold Barnes found for Jack. Each had it 5-4 in rounds with one even. Fullam thought each boy won five rounds. Ruling that Young took his rounds by a wider margin, he gave Terry a thin 6-5 edge in points.

Detroit Duel With Toronto NHL Feature

By BILL GRIMES

One month from today the curtain will descend on the 1947-48 National Hockey League regular season, but the current campaign has been such a ding-dong affair that in all probability the best hockey of the year is in the offing.

The NHL allotted a worthwhile bonus to be divided, according to how the teams finish, among the players of the four clubs, which make the Stanley Cup play-offs. The Red Wings and the Maple Leafs, who, incidentally, clash tonight in Toronto, are engaged in a knock-down-drag-out battle for the Prince of Wales Trophy and, of course, is the "Jack-Pot."

Under a rookie NHL coach—Tommy Ivan—the Detroit Red Wings are the class of the league. They've been in the upper bracket all season and, at present, hold a two point lead over Toronto. On their home and away record, the Red Wings compared most favorably with the best of all time NHL teams. In my opinion, the home and away record of the Wings is the best ever compiled in National League competition.

They have played 48 games—24 at home and 24 on the road. They have won 13 at home and 13 on the ROAD. And they have won more points on the road than they have in the Detroit Olympia. And, hockey fans, that's a remarkable feat, one which should give the Detroiters the nod over all contenders for the Stanley Cup.

While the Red Wings and Maple Leafs are dueling for the top spot, there'll be a four way battle on for the two other play off berths. The Bruins snapper of their slump this week, picking up five important points, via a tie with Rangers and victories over Detroit and Chicago. Just as the Hawks were getting ready to move in on them, the Canadiens turned around and beat the Maple Leafs, which gave them a lift for tonight's game with the Bruins.

Presh Weston Adams stated today that if Jack Crawford didn't come up to joining the club tomorrow in New York, it was perfectly all right with him. The veteran defenseman was hit hard by the death of his four-day-old daughter and may beg off for tomorrow but he'll be in Toronto for next Wednesday's tilt with the Maple Leafs.

Single Point Balks Jack In Comeback With Young

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—

The Beau Jack comeback is stalled. All because of a tough East Side New Yorker named Terry Young and a lone point on the scoreboard of Referee Frank Fullam. The fight fans' favorite comment, "It could have been a draw," was appropriate last night. Even the officials were split to say nothing of the crowd of 14,923 which paid $63,317. All agreed it was the best fight of the winter season.

Judge Charley Shortell liked Young and Judge Harold Barnes found for Jack. Each had it 5-4 in rounds with one even. Fullam thought each boy won five rounds. Ruling that Young took his rounds by a wider margin, he gave Terry a thin 6-5 edge in points.

Jack at 26 didn't look like the old bouncing Beau who two months ago won the lightweight crown. Some of the old zip was missing, probably because of his twice-fractured left kneecap. At times he leaped and swung with the old abandon. After he swung, he missed and ran into heavy punishment.

Young also had changed. He didn't look like the fellow who lost recently to 19-year-old Paddy Shamrock in a punishment game, countered with effect and scored the only knockdown of the bout when he floored Jack for two in the first with a left hook.

The camp of Beau, the former shoeshine boy from Augusta, Ga., who drew $1,538,074 into Madison Square Garden in 26 appearances, still has ambitious future plans. Their busy puncher goes against Sammy Angott, another former lightweight champ, in Chicago March 12.
